H. E. Dr. Bandar Hajjar Opening by the president Islamic Development Bank Group

Background

Multi-stakeholder partnerships are central for the implementation of national and global development agendas. Public, private and civil society partnership led to some outstanding results in many developing areas. This was particularly notable in health and education, where cooperation across governments, private sector, and NGOs improved millions of lives.

The scale and ambition of the 2030 Development Agenda call for smart partnerships and collective action at all levels since no country, sector or segment of society, acting alone can deliver the SDGs. In particular, the SDG 17 calls multi-stakeholder to engage in strategic partnerships and continuous horizontal and vertical coordination of actions at different levels.

Objective

The seminar will provide a platform for policy makers, development practitioners and international organizations to discuss about guiding principles on how to forge strategic partnerships for the achievement of the development goals.

Themes and Questions

Theme1: What kind of partnership we need to achieve the SDGs. What are the main ingredients for successful strategic partnerships with multiple stakeholders?

Theme 2: How the civil society, the private sector, parliamentarians and MDBs appraise their contributions to national and global efforts to achieve the SDGs.

Theme3: Experiences of member countries in forging smart partnership for the SDGs.
